On the occasion of the extreme weather conditions hitting our country in the last days, HEDNO would like to draw the attention of all citizens not to approach conductors or other Grid components on the ground because of serious accident risk.

The bad weather hitting our country has caused significant damages to the power grids; more specifically to conductors, cables, poles, substations, insulators etc. Under no circumstances should citizens approach these components because of the serious risk for accidents, injuries etc.

If a citizen detects a conductor or another component of the Grid on the ground, he/she should immediately inform the fault center of HEDNO or contact with the Police Station in the area.
